CES:

Three experienced presenters will give us their feedback and impressions about what had to be seen at the “Consumer Electronics Show 2015 (CES) » held in Las Vegas last January and visited by more than 160,000 attendees.

Our presenters, coming from various technological environments, will talk about the new technologies and trends they observed based on their backgrounds. We will thus get complementary presentations on what really caught their eyes.

How about you ? What do you think about the "wearable's", "virtual reality", the "connected", the "internet of things", etc. ?

Our three presenters are:

Mrs. Julie Gagnon, engineer with the New Broadcast Technology group, Radio-Canada, contributes to various technologies evaluation for the corporation.

Mr. Benoît Chamontin, is coeditor of Geeks and Com and also a communication consultant.

Mr. Stéphane Vaillancourt, active blogger on technology popularization. He is actively involved in several communications and TV shows such as Best Buy, ZTélé, Canoë, etc.

How to optimize the use of transcode farms and archiving robots
(to be confirmed)

Mr. Louis Plante will tell us about the various aspects to consider in order to optimize these systems.

Mr. Plante, engineer with the New Broadcast Technology group, Radio-Canada, is actively involved in the analysis and optimization of multiple systems used at the SRC.
